ABSTRACT

New terms formed in the national language, activation or passivity of the meanings of linguistic-speech units according to objective conditions, addressing the long and recent history of the role and place of government and state leaders in language policy. Issues such as the language of artistic creation and the language of science can be perfected only if they serve a single national language. Language is the property of the whole nation, of all people who speak a particular language of an entire nation. Maintaining the purity and clarity of the language is the significant issue that requires attention every second and every moment, as well as no artificiality, no haste in this direction.
