ABSTRACT

This article is devoted to the emergence of ideas that led to the emergence of sociolinguistics, the importance of theories in them. In the first half of the twentieth century, such ideas arose that without them it is difficult to imagine modern sociolinguistics. Changes and updates in society are primarily reflected in the vocabulary of the language. In most of linguistics, the study of language as a systemic structural phenomenon has long dominated its interpretation as a largely orphaned structure. But over time, the approach to language has changed.
