ABSTRACT

The article examines the current state of Namangan light industry enterprises and the role of domestic and foreign markets in the production of their products. Light industry is one of the priority sectors in stabilizing the economy of the republic. At present, one of the goals of the light industry is to deepen the processing of raw cotton and supply the finished product. The development of handicrafts, silkworm breeding and the transmission of satin weaving traditions from generation to generation were the main factors in the development of light industry in the region. The fact that light industry products produced in Namangan region find their place not only in the domestic market, but also in foreign markets is a result of the ongoing reforms in our country.
