ABSTRACT

This article examines the fact that in a modern market economy, in which entrepreneurial activity is widely developed, the introduction of penalties, and not the use of incentive norms in the commission of criminal acts related to economic activity. Our current criminal legislation provides for more exemption from punishment in incentive norms, therefore today in the criminal legislation there are proposals for improving incentive norms aimed at exemption from liability.

KEYWORDS: Incentive Norm, Harm Caused, Crime, Criminal Liability, Release From Criminal Liability, Release From Criminal Punishment.
