ABSTRACT

This article discusses 10 copper coins accidentally found in a new monument during the next archeological excavations carried out by scientists of Termez State University. The organization and location of these coins are analyzed. The area where this excavation was carried out has been a major strategic location, the only salt deposit in Central Asia, and has been under-exploited by humans since antiquity, at least since the Bronze Age. As an example, we can cite the fact that Ulanbulaksay, which laid the foundation for its culture and, in turn, caused the crisis, is located on the very edge of consciousness.
