ABSTRACT

In order to improve the quality of education in Uzbekistan, preserve our rich cultural heritage, as well as promote and enhance it, it is important to consolidate the resources of Jadidism on a single platform. The launch of this case is of particular importance to preserve the rich history of our country and to ensure the reliability and accuracy of ongoing research. According to world experience, such corpses have been created for a long time, and their delay in our country will lead to many unresolved socio-political problems. Given that the Corpus is a better resource than an electronic library, it is important in many ways to involve the large scientific community in its creation. One of the important tasks that must be solved when creating a corps is the use of world experience and the most accurate and practically justified methods and techniques in our country. In our opinion, the creation of this corpus is important for the consolidation of studies of Jadidism and for determining the accuracy of the approaches and scientific conclusions that they put forward in the past. A corpus that brings together the sources of Jadidism can be a valuable resource for university students, independent researchers and high school teachers in organizing their classes at a higher level, as well as for the general public.
