ABSTRACT

The article provides information on the emerging etymology and history of tourism terminology and references to sources. Similarly, the lexical-semantic aspect of the tourism industry is structured. The division of lexemes into semantic groups is associated with the rapid development of the tourism industry. We know that as a result of economic-political, cultural relations, many different terms related to tourism appear in the dictionary. Thus, by adding a tour from French, two new tourist and tourism terms have emerged in English, which have a new meaning relative to French, which can be explained by non-linguistic vocabulary facts.

KEYWORDS: Tourism, Lexical-Semantic Group, Railway, Excursions, Guide, Hotel, Travel Agency, Economic Sphere, History Of Tourism.
