ABSTRACT

Nowadays, everyone should strive to preserve and continue the tradition of mentor-disciple. It is very important to preserve these traditions, especially in miniature art. Because there is a saying in our people, "A student who has not seen a teacher is not a student." This was said in vain, that is, the teacher reached his current level through difficulties. If the disciple considers that person as a teacher and follows him, the disciple will reach the level of the teacher without any difficulty. This article examines the role of the master-disciple tradition in miniature art.
